...Or, be careful what you wish for.

This ad is currently being distributed by the Repugnantcan- excuse me, Republican party, but with just a few minor changes it could be a great motivator for rallying Democrats around the country. In fact, I wish the Democrats would put out an ad like this! I'd be a hell of a lot more supportive of them if I thought for sure that they would definitely vote to impeach that criminal bastard in the White House!

(Thanks, JP!)

Dear Friend,

The word is out. Their position is clear. Last week, Sen. Russ Feingold floated a reckless plan to censure the President, and Democrat leaders have ecstatically jumped on Feingold's bandwagon.

And, if they gain even more power in November, they won't stop there.

Feingold says that censure actually represents "moderation" and calls the terrorist surveillance program an impeachable offense. Dick Durbin, the number two Democrat in the Senate, fails to rule out impeachment if Democrats retake Congress. Iowa Democrat Tom Harkin is talking "high crimes and misdemeanors." And 31 House Democrats are calling for a committee to look into impeachment. Their leader? John Conyers, who would become House Judiciary Committee chairman under Democrat control.

Censure.
Impeachment Talk.
Weakening National Security.

The Democrats' agenda for America.

Help us win this fight.
Make an Urgent Contribution.

The Democrats' plan for 2006? Take the House and Senate, and impeach the President.

With our nation at war, is this the kind of Congress you want? If your answer is a resounding "NO", I need you to make an urgent contribution to help us win this fight.

Democrat leaders' talk of censure and impeachment isn't about the law or the President doing anything wrong. It's about the fact that Democrat leaders don't want America to fight the War on Terror with every tool in our arsenal. Your immediate action will send these reckless Democrats a message and help preserve our Republican majorities.

And what happens if we stand on the sidelines, and give the likes of Russ Feingold, John Kerry, and John Conyers control of Congress? Here's what the The Wall Street Journal says: "In fact, our guess is that censure would be the least of it. The real debate in Democratic circles would be whether to pass articles of impeachment. ... [E]veryone should understand that censure and impeachment are important -- and so far the only -- parts of the left's agenda for the next Congress."

The world is watching. Using every tool at our disposal to fight terrorists should not be a partisan issue. Democrats should to be focused on winning the War on Terror, not undermining it with political axe-grinding of the ugliest kind.

Sincerely,

Ken Mehlman
